

GERALD HILL

Gerald Hill, a Choctaw Tribal Member, has been a black-and-white photographer and printmaker for over 40 years.

His work focuses on the American Southwest as well as the Midwest Prairie and other locations which display the country's unique greatness. Over the years, his work has been displayed by fine galleries in major metropolitan cities such as Dallas, Kansas City and Santa Fe. Canon USA has licensed several pieces of Gerald's work, including photographs in the "Art of Emprise" Collection" – a bank-owned accumulation of investment art widely considered as one of finest corporate-owned collections in the country.

In addition, multiple publications over the years have highlighted Gerald and his work, techniques and artistic philosophies.

Gerald currently resides in Kansas.
