

LINDA BAILEY

An internationally selling artist, Linda Bailey has felt a lifetime of passion for the interplay of light and color in the world. That passion brought her to discovering her own talent and life's focus of creating art.

As part of the Choctaw Nation of Oklahoma family, Linda's art subject is focused on the positive; she paints about faith, hope, love, goodness, power, belonging, redemption, light and strength. For example, her painting, When I In Awesome Wonder was inspired by the song, How Great Thou Art. Linda often finds her emotions stirred by song titles and lyrics, some which translate to canvas.

Additionally, Linda has a passion for charity. She has donated artwork to raise money for a variety of charitable organizations, including a Children's Home in Oxford, NC and for Freedom Global, an organization that creates sustainable solutions to alleviate poverty in countries around the globe.

Her art is also featured in the Corporate World – Washington, DC; Bel Air, MD; Baton Rouge, LA; and in the North Carolina Research Triangle Park Frontier Buildings. Most of her work, however, is enjoyed in the homes of art collectors.

For the last several years, Linda has realized her purpose in life is to give glory to God. She gives thanks to Him for her art skills and truly wishes to glorify Him through her paintings.

Linda currently lives in North Carolina.
